Reality Gap is an eye-opening, empowering, and essential resource for the parents of teens and pre-teens – as well as for all who work with young people. It arms adults with the facts and strategies necessary to help kids make safe choices.

Stephen Wallace, a resident camp director at CCSC, has broad experience as a school psychologist and adolescent counselor. He has served as chairman and CEO of SADD since 1995 and speaks frequently to young people, families, and the media about youth development and decision-making. Stephen has appeared on CNN, E!, FOX, NBC, and PBS and was recently honored by the White House as a national leader in drug and alcohol education. In February of 2008, Stephen received an award from the American Camp Association for being a tireless and passionate advocate for youth and the camp movement.

“Once in a while a brilliant book crosses your path, compelling you to read it cover to cover. Reality Gap is such a book. As a youth professional and a mother, the reality of what my children and all children face every day startled me. But then I found stories of hope and resiliency amid its chapters, and I remembered again the role we can all play to help every child triumph.”

- Peg L. Smith, CEO, American Camp Association
